About the Presenters

Debbie Hepplewhite - Synthetic Phonics

*A key visionary thinker in the synthetic phonics movement -
A breath of fresh air*

Synthetic phonics belong to all people

Fundamental changes are ahead

Be prepared, hear what the implications of the Rose Report have on training the trainers...

Debbie Hepplewhite has a reputation as a passionate and inspirational speaker. She has an excellent understanding of the international English language 'Reading Wars' and has helped to inform the recent House of Commons inquiry 'Teaching Children to Read' and the Rose Review of beginning reading instruction.

Most significantly, Debbie has a clear vision of a fully literate nation based on both her insight of the issues and years of practical teaching experience. She leads people to question and dispel the myths and madness of past and current education and political dogma and believes that teachers should be in a position to make informed choices but, in order to do this, they need to be fully informed.

Debbie has been training, advising and disseminating information through on-line forums and via email for many years in a voluntary capacity. She devotes her time, energy and expertise in the field to pre-empt the government from maintaining an ill-advised monopoly in the field of teacher-training.

Debbie's session offers:

- provocative challenges for the education profession
- the quality of information required for teachers to make well-informed decisions and actions regarding basic skills in literacy throughout the key stages
- the unravelling of the complexities of the English alphabetic code to create a pathway for simple and effective teaching
- spontaneous discussion, debate and trouble-shooting
- practical advice and ideas for immediate use in the classroom

The course will use a huge range of products including:

- Jolly Phonics
- Word Play
- Zed Project
- Word Factory
- Podcaster
- Audacity

Fee only £295+vat per delegate inclusive of tuition, course materials, refreshments, Money back guarantee.

Russell Prue - Creativity in the Classroom

Award winning ICT Evangelist & Author

Russell is an independent ICT specialist

The TES describes Russell as one of the best known ICT Evangelist in the UK

He is passionate about education and very inspiring

Russell has spent the last 21 years working in the education sector evangelising, and promoting the use of technology in Education. Russell is an independent ICT Evangelist. He regularly predicts future developments in technology and trains leading professionals in the use of ICT. Russell has presented for the BBC at BETT and is part of a consortium that is a preferred supplier to the BBC's Digital Curriculum project (BBCjam). He supports a number of key educational suppliers and has spoken for the Department for Education and Skills at major events.

Russell has served as vice chair of governors and supports many classroom research projects, he also presents to students and teaching colleagues on a regular basis.

Russell's first book was published last year and the Times Education Supplement said in their glowing book review "Russell's book should be read by the many ICT hardware and software suppliers ... it might also serve the classroom teacher well." The book is about equipping presenters with more audience engaging skills.

He is a highly motivating and engaging presenter and his talks are always topical and inspiring.

Focus points:

- This workshop will focus on creativity in the classroom using ICT.
- We will be looking at how colleagues can use digital story telling, music composition and podcasting in helping to release the creative potential of the learner.
- Through live demonstration and hands on experience colleagues will be able to see how these new technologies can be used.
- We will also be covering online music instrument learning, how to make a great movie, lighting and how to use the camera in your mobile phone.
- This is a practical rich session with plenty of group work involved.
- The goody bag that you will receive at the end of the day will include some of the software that we will use in this session.
